“Graciousness Squared”

I didn't want to bother him. He was in the “zone.” My friend, Elijah was surrounded by books-headphones on, staring intently at his laptop screen. It was as if he were in a library. He was quiet and studious. This is exactly what you would expect to find in a coffeehouse. I imagined that he was working diligently on a book he'd been writing. There were open seats at occupied tables, but I wasn't familiar with the people sitting at them. Besides, I had work to do as well. Hoping not to cause too much trouble, I came up next to him and asked, “Hey, I don't want to interrupt, but do you mind if I sit here?” He nodded in the affirmative. I sat down at his table and began to study.

Some time later, a man who appeared to be in his mid 30's came out of the corner of my eye and drew close. He asked... me, “May I sit at your table?” I didn't know who he was. He wore a red Ohio State t-shirt, so he couldn't be that bad. The only thing he carried was a cup of coffee. Without a thought I said, “Sure, have a seat.” The man didn't sit next to me. He sat next to Elijah. Elijah looked up. That's when I realized my mistake. I wanted to be gracious and accommodating, but this really wasn't my table. It was Elijah's. The man simply nodded at Elijah as he sat, but didn't say a word. Perfect. He picked up on the social cues. Good man.

Minutes later, another man walked up to the end of the table with his coffee. He also appeared to be about 35. A large Superman emblem stretched across the chest of his blue shirt. He looked at the man in red, “May I sit here?” “Sure!” Ohio State replied.

Just like that, Elijah was surrounded. He glanced up with a, “I guess this is happening,” look on his face. Something happened between Superman and Ohio State. I'm not sure what kind of magic it was, but it was real. Suddenly, it was like no one else was in the room. Excitement was in the air. Their conversation became increasingly louder. Based on how things transpired over the next hour, I'm guessing those two men left the coffeehouse to get matching BFF tattoos together. Joy and laughter poured out of them like old college buddies. The table shook as they leaned into the conversation.

*“Sure,
have a seat”*

Elijah didn't say a word...at least, not out loud. He offered one seat... to a friend. He lost all the seats. One decision. That's it. One gracious decision, “Yes, Travis, you may sit,” was all it took to totally lose control. How could he have known?

He couldn't. Neither can we.

We like to think that we can control. In so many cases, it's a figment of our imagination. Do this, then that, and the outcome will be good. No doubt, there are patterns in life where this is likely so. Some forms of living will clearly produce better outcomes than others. That being said, I've seen many people judge themselves harshly when things out of their control take place. “If I only would have... maybe if I just... I should have seen that...” By all means, self-analyze, adjust for the better. This is the expectation for a believer- repentance as we aim toward the character of Christ, but when the “chips” don't fall as expected, when the hand played goes wrong, know that in the end, all we truly have is the promise that God will be with us as we go.

Annual Church Conference

The Administrative Board invites the church members to attend a churchwide congregational meeting in the sanctuary 11/8 following the worship service. This is an annual meeting of the business of the church to review the 2027 leadership roster, review committee updates and revisit the membership roster, etc. This is also a time of celebration as we praise God for what He is doing in and through our church.

After the meeting everyone is invited to share in a potluck dinner in the Fellowship Hall.

Join us as we break bread together as a church family.

The Different You Make!

We have sponsored a young girl named Yamukelo for several years and, thanks to our support, she and her whole community of Maseyisini, Eswatini are graduating from the World Vision program. She and her community are now thriving with safer water, access to food, improved hygiene, less illness, and improved reading comprehension.

Community Christmas

Lindsey Trinity will be participating in Sandusky County Community Christmas again this year. The Missions Committee has decided to give to 2 senior households and 5 families with children. As in years past, tags will be available at the back of the sanctuary in late November for you to select gift items to donate. Help us share God's love with families in our community!

World Vision

Meet  Palmira J

Now our journey of impact can continue with Palmira, a 4-year-old girl living in Mazua, Mozambique. She likes to play and she is not in school yet. Please pray for her and pray that God would provide wisdom to her country's leaders for a peaceful solution to violence. Pray for protection from the natural disasters that are becoming more frequent.

Got a good idea?
